

ABSTRACT

A probe for protein-protein interaction analysis applicable to various proteins, which enables simple analysis in high accuracy, and a method for analyzing interaction of two proteins is provided. Protein splicing from the probe is caused by protein-protein interaction, and a physiochemically or biochemically detectable protein is regenerated.